

Carlos Campos

Psychosocial Rehabilitation

Graduated in Occupational Therapy by School of Health (ESS-P.Porto) and with an M.Sc. in Psychiatry and Mental Health in the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro, Carlos Campos is currently completing his Ph.D. in Neuroscience at the University of Porto with an FCT scholarship to research the Underlying Mechanisms of Empathy Deficits in Psychopathy Phenotypes. He's an Assistant Professor at ESS-P. Porto and is collaborating with the Center for Rehabilitation Research in the in the Psychosocial Rehabilitation Area. He has published over 15 papers on international peer-reviewed journals, mainly addressing rehabilitation methods to enhance neurocognition and social cognition like cognitive remediation, non-invasive brain stimulation and physical exercise.

E-mail: cgc@ess.ipp.pt